There are also advising resources available in a number of other offices on campus. TODAY you will have presentations from your college and major advisers. This is a great opportunity to get your questions answered!

Use the Enrollment Planning Worksheet at the end of this program to record important information from your College and Major advising sessions, and make a list of courses that you might enroll in today.

Early Academic Advising Clusters for Students Undecided on a Major

When you applied to UC Santa Cruz, you selected a proposed major (e.g., history, economics, etc.) or selected undeclared/undecided. It is common to be unclear about what you want to major in at this point in time, but it is also important to start the decision-making process in your first quarter. The Academic Advising Clusters were designed with the understanding that some students need to explore their options before deciding on a major. The Advising Clusters are an excellent tool to help you remain on track for majors that may be possibilities in the future; more information about advising clusters is available at http://advising.ucsc.edu/planning/your-major/clusters/

It is important to consider your educational goals early in your academic career. Some majors become more difficult (or impossible) to complete in a timely manner if you start them a year or two into your academic career at UC Santa Cruz. We hope you’ll hit the ground running in the fall by taking classes as recommended in the major advising sessions you attend, and that you will utilize the many other career and major exploration tools available to you. These resources include college and major advisers, the UC Santa Cruz General Catalog, major websites and handbooks, and the Career Center. During Fall Welcome Week, and throughout the year, you will have opportunities to gather information about other academic programs. If you are not sure what major you will pursue, but your interests are in line with an Advising Cluster, use the table below to guide you in choosing a major presentation.

ACADEMIC SUCCESS PRACTICES

Time Management
With good time management, you have more free time, less stress, and a feeling that you are in control and “on top of things.” [from http://www.franklin.kschools.us/Downloads/How%20To%20Get%20Good%20Grades.pdf, Linda O’Brien] Beginning your first quarter, build and strengthen these habits:

- Do Not Overextend Yourself: plan your day/week; learn where your spending your time; find balance
- Be Organized
- Manage Your Time Well: use class time and study halls; create your own study plan;
- Study Smart: find a good place to study; learn your learning style
- Reduce Test Anxiety: start studying early
- Get Help When You Need It: when you have a problem, do something about it

Make a Slug Connection
Form a lasting connection with other UC Santa Cruz Slugs! Take advantage of this time; use your Slug Connection cards to keep in touch with people you meet at orientation. You will be given Connection Cards to collect others’ contact information and give contact information to others. Orientation is your first opportunity to meet, greet, and make long-lasting UC Santa Cruz friends. Make a connection today!

Reflect
On the way home think about...

1. What is something you learned today that surprised you? What was most useful?
2. When you think about starting at UC Santa Cruz, what are you most excited about? What are you most nervous about?
3. What are your academic and social expectations for your first quarter of college?
4. How will you handle things if your expectations aren’t met (e.g. you have a roommate conflict or struggle academically)? Which resource will you access? Whom will you speak with?
5. What is the general expectation in regards to communication with your family (or support network)? How often will you talk and communicate during your first quarter? What are important issues to discuss? What will be the best times to connect? (Best time of day; consider mid-terms and finals)
6. How do you feel about your course schedule? Do you think you are in the right major? Would you consider other majors?
7. Do you know how to access resources? Which ones?
8. How do you expect your values to adjust/change during college?
9. Let’s talk about money: How should this important discussion be approached and when?
10. How often should you (the student) go home during the first quarter/year?
11. Other questions?

Prepare
Think about what you need to do next. Make a list.

Be an engaged community member
UC Santa Cruz students make a difference. Ask yourself how you will get involved!

- What clubs/orgs will I get involved with?
- Do I want to be a UC Santa Cruz tour guide?
- Do I want to become an Orientation Leader?
- Do I want to study abroad?
- Will I volunteer in the community? Where do I learn more?
